Walk on the wild side
Birders, take note: Half Moon Cay has been designated a Wild Bird Reserve by the Bahamian National Trust. Sooty and roseate terns, shearwaters and Bahamian pterulins all fly through here. And nesting in the sea grape trees, the feisty bananaquit or yellow bird, immortalized in the song of the same name.

Saddle up
Enjoy a one-of-a-kind experience as you ride a specially trained quarter horse along the winding, equestrian-only trail to the island's highest point for breathtaking views — then through the surf as your horse splashes in the sea.

Swim with stingrays
Graceful, gentle winged angels of the deep. Stingrays are curious creatures that will follow you anywhere for a simple piece of squid. Holland America Line visits several places where you can see or touch stingrays in the Caribbean, including Stingray Cove on Half Moon Cay.
